AN ETHOS ENGAGEMENT SERIES SPECIAL TALK

While there is a growing interest in developing Christians for leadership in the marketplace, professions and within the community, several important ingredients are still underemphasised. One ingredient is the need to encourage leaders at all levels of an organisation. Another is the ability to frame leading questions and paradigm-breaking paradoxes, instead of merely issuing directives and identifying goals.

This talk will draw on key writings, case studies and benchmark practices to discuss these features of effective leadership, as well as address other often-neglected dimensions required in dealing with the complex challenges of today.
